Perhaps a huge
bird will pick me up and fly me To some beautiful land where all I love is healthy, and at home.

from "Just Think"
in Waterways: Poetry in the Mainstream
volume 25 number 9

#7 Deadline January 15, 2016

Lev started his first small press magazine, HYN Anthology, in 1969.

The same year his brief underground film acting career pinnacled with his portrayal of The Poet in Robert Downey's classic Putney Swope.

...Constantine murdered his own wife and child. What a Saint!

from "On the Film Constantine's Sword"
in Waterways: Poetry in the Mainstream
volume 28 number 3

#8 Deadline February 15, 2016

Leaving the theater, I spent some moments in something still resembling the world of the film: my basic test for effectiveness.

from "On the Film L'Enfant"
in Waterways: Poetry in the Mainstream
volume 27 number 3

#9 Deadline March 15, 2016

The thing I carry away is the tenderness, sweetness of Yoko Ono looking up at John, singing, speechifying, lying in bed for peace . . . and then the child . . . and then the shots.

from "On the Film The U.S. vs John Lennon"
in Waterways: Poetry in the Mainstream
volume 28 number 5

#10 Deadline April 15, 2016

. . . I have arrived at no conclusion. I'll simply fold things up and turn out the light. I will set the clock as an experiment to see if the alarm goes off.

from "The Test"
in Waterways: Poetry in the Mainstream
volume 25 number 10
